Dear Sirs,

I have known Pastor Jim Cecy for quite a number of years. I can't think of anyone more committed and qualified as a leader in whatever field he enters.

As a founder of a statewide men's ministry for 25 years, I can't even remember how many times I've come to him seeking his counsel and wisdom. He has been a mentor to me, a man I look up to as an example of what a leader means. As a member of his Jaron Ministries board, I've experienced it firsthand.

It's been said; "that to be a leader, that if you look behind you and no one is following, you're just taking a walk." In Jim Cece's life, the line following him has been very long. Whether it be through his fabulous and revered teaching of scripture, a consultant to a great many pastors in our city, other cities and abroad, as an advisor to pastors and churches or other organizations such as the one I founded, he has no peers.

I could talk about the countries he has impacted through his teachings, the amazing number of hours he has sacrificed for the Kingdom, the number of books he has authored, not only that have been distributed throughout the United States but also translated into a multitude of languages around the world, and that would speak volumes about his significant abilities. But the reason for his great success, in my opinion, is that he genuinely cares about you and your success. When he sits with you, it's like you're the most important person in the world. The man exudes humility, and that's a scarce commodity in today's world.

I could go on and on, but bottom line is this; Jim Cece is THE most qualified man for any position because of his leadership abilities, whether it encompasses the Church, diversified businesses or organizations. Jim would be a tremendous asset to each and every one.

Sincerely,

KC Dickie
